Judge Dr./ Abdul Aziz Salman, Secretary General of the Presidential Elections Committee, stated that what was published on some websites about the ratios and numbers is unfounded, and that the Committee has not observed any ratios or numbers yet.

The Secretary General of the Committee confirms as well that what is published concerning establishment or existence of polling stations dedicated for voters voting outside of their governorates of residence is unfounded and that the citizens who did not express their wish to cast their vote out of their governorates before the registration deadline can only vote in their home electoral district. He also confirmed that what is circulated about extending the voting period for one extra day past the determined two day period is unfounded.

He also stressed that his statements about writing a word or drawing a picture to case their vote aimed only to show an example for the validity or invalidity of ballots and the best is to put a sign or any indication as there is no meaning in disrupting the queue and increasing other voters' waiting time to write a word or draw a picture.
